

OPPOSES EXEMPTIONS
TO COASTWISE SHIPSPRESIDENT WILSON'S ATTITUDE
ON PANAMA CANAL TOLLS IS MADE CLEAR.

SEES ENGLAND'S POINT

Fears That Proposed Regulation
Would Be a Violation of Hay-
Pauncefote Treaty.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Jan. 27.—That President Wilson is opposed to the exemption of American coastwise ships from Panama canal tolls was flatly asserted at the capital today by those who know what took place at the conference last night between the president and senate foreign relations committee.

Senators who talked with the president said today that Mr. Wilson fully explained his position on the tolls question; that his views inclined toward the contention of Great Britain and that he was not prepared to yield in the near future. Several senators expressed surprise that in view of the president's positive attitude he had not urged some action at the extra session of congress.

That the president may recommend was not disclosed in today's report of the White House conference.

Fears Treaty Violation.
It was said today that the president was not opposed to toll exemption as such, but that he was strongly of the opinion that they would be a discrimination which would not agree with the provisions of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

Lifting the embargo on arms for Japan also was discussed at last night's conference. Some senators favored it on the ground that it would hasten hostilities to a conclusion. One senator said today he believed the president was inclining more and more toward that view and might lift the embargo soon.

It was the general opinion of senators after their talk with the president on the Japanese situation that officials in Japan were friendly to the United States but were being pressed by radicals.

Rush Anti-Trust Bills.
The house commerce committee agreed today to meet daily, beginning Friday, to frame anti-trust legislation. The interstate order commission and control of railway stocks and bonds will be taken up as soon as witnesses are ready.

President Wilson today signed an executive order putting into operation on April 1st the new law governing the Panama canal zone and naming Colonel Geo. W. Goethals as the first civil governor.

Secretary Garrison made the announcement as he carried away the executive order from the White House. He said Col. Goethals had not been officially informed, but that he would be as soon as his name was sent to the senate, probably some time today. Mr. Garrison said the cabinet meeting was devoted largely to a discussion of the Panama canal government.

He added that the question of tolls had not been discussed and that the executive order merely made provision for the collection of such tolls as were provided by law.

"The permanent government of the zone, headed by a civil governor, is now in charge."

Representative Frear, republican, of Wisconsin, delivered an attack in the house today on the report of the election committee which recommended the seating of Representative Whalley of South Carolina, over the contest of Mayor Grace of Charleston. He declared the corrupt practices act "a fraud and sham" and said the testimony had shown that Whalley paid $50,000 to buy votes of white men in the primaries preceding his election.

Nominations of Henry M. Pindell of Peoria, to be ambassador to Russia, and Winifred T. Denison of Portland, Me., to be member of Philippines, commissioner of the Philippines, secretary of the interior of the Philippines, were confirmed by the senate today.

DEATH IS A SEQUEL

Chicago.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Jan. 27.—The story of an employer's faith in a too-tender heart who had no right to it, was brought to light here today at an inquest held over the body of W. E. Curvey of Cleveland who died suddenly last night, probably of self-administered poison.

Curvey was employed by the Vineyard Barstow company of Cleveland. He stole $10,000 of the company's funds, but was arrested at Pueblo, Colorado, and brought back. Despite this fact, and assurances by the police that it was not his first offense against the law, S. K. Barstow forgave him. He made himself sure to the police that Curvey would offend no more. Curvey's position was restored to him and in the succeeding years Curvey justified his employers' faith in him.

Recently Barstow died, and Curvey, said to fear that old charges would be raked up against him, is said to have left the city under an assumed name and came to Chicago where he registered as "W. E. Jackson, Buffalo, N. Y."

Curvey is said to have been a brother-in-law of Charles Orr, former director of schools of Cleveland. In his effects was found a letter from the late Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland, praising his work as a decorator.

London, Eng., Jan. 27.—An invention for rubber plating battleships is being experimented with by the British admiralty according to The Globe, usually well informed on naval matters.

The process consists of sandwiching sheets of rubber between layers of steel and the inventors declare that a wall of rubber will have the same effect on cannon shells that sand bags have on rifle bullets.

SAYS FARM COURSES
ARE FINDING FAVOR

Inspector Coddard Tells County Superintendents of Interest in Agricultural Branches.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 27.—The rapid growth of agricultural work in high schools of Wisconsin was sketched by State Inspector H. N. Goddard before the county superintendents whose first session of a two days' annual meeting opened here last night. Sixty-three high schools are now giving four-year courses in agriculture, and practically all high schools are giving some agricultural instruction.

Seven county superintendents. There are seven county agricultural schools, all with fine equipment, but with a deficiency in that credit is not given to them. High schools for the work they do. Mr. Goddard said this shows that the people feel a demand for agricultural work connected with a strong high school course that they feel that which merely trains boys for the farm.

Inspector Goddard saw a great need for better trained teachers, larger and more definite equipment and better development of an efficient plan of work. How to make the work of more practical interest to pupils and to make it an important part of the curriculum is the problem. It involves field work, community work, home projects, corn growing projects, etc. A more intimate acquaintance with current literature and such means of improvements as instruction, farmers' courses, etc., were recommended.

"Agricultural instruction should help to develop the highest type of appreciation of the citizen's duty for country life," he said.

Special Aid Insertion.
Superintendent C. B. Rhoads of Waushara advocated continuance of special state aid for rural schools. He believed that the county superintendents should be given power to certify the conditions upon which rural schools should be granted or denied state aid.

Inspectors are authorized to name the requirements by which graded schools become entitled to state aid. Supt. Rhoads said that he felt that county superintendents would abuse this power. The great improvement in Wisconsin schools in the last decade he declared, is due largely to the fact that special state aid is allowed on condition that schools conform with specific requirements, with the state inspectors as the judges and with power to withhold the aid. Such rural schools placed over the rural school would bring a similar improvement, he said.

Superintendent A. H. Arveson of Langlade county spoke on "School for the Homeless." The subject of plans for new rural school buildings was discussed by Superintendent J. A. Van Natta of Iowa county and Jessie N. Smith of Bayfield county.

MINERS' FEDERATION
WILL HEAR GOMPERSExecutive of A. F. L. Will Explain
Reasons for Inactivity in Michigan Copper Strike.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, will arrive in Indianapolis Thursday and speak before the convention of the United Mine Workers of America, according to the announcement made by President John P. White today.

Mr. Gompers will explain the action of the executive counsel of the federation in connection with the strike made in the convention yesterday by Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, that if the copper strike in Michigan is lost, it will be due entirely to the inactivity of the executive of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Gompers was asked to appear before the miners by a vote of the convention.

President Moyer said he expected to remain here and hear Gompers' explanation. The convention upheld the action of the international executive body in its ruling in the Joseph Toggiani case. The international executive body permitted Toggiani, business manager of the mine workers' journal, to remain in office after he had admitted that he signed two transfer cards illegally.

The John Doe investigation into the state highway department affairs will be resumed tomorrow with William Sulzer, former governor, again a witness.

The movement in Albany to give District Attorney Whitman statewide power to hunt for grafters is interesting Mr. Whitman. The first steps to that end were taken in the assembly last night when a resolution was introduced that Mr. Whitman, one of his assistants be made counsel to any committee appointed by the assembly to investigate the state highway department. In that case Mr. Whitman will acquire powers equal to those of a special district attorney.

Lectures on the use of power on the farm, the county home, sanitation, sensible dress and physical training were to be delivered by prominent speakers. The course will continue two weeks.

One of the features of this year's program will be the conclusion of a special class in sewing. The sewing instruction will be in charge of Miss Annabell Turner, instructor in home economics for the extension division and the following courses will be offered:

The elements of sewing; plain stitches by hand and machine; muslin undergarments; dress making; tailored shirt waists and simple wash dresses; and a study of materials. In this last course the hygienic values, the detection of adulterations and the economic side of the fabric question will be taken up.

Dayton Juvenile Judge Declares That Starvation Wages Lead Youth to Life of Crime.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Dayton, O., Jan. 27.—"Bad boys make bad girls," said Judge Roland W. Baggett, of the juvenile court here in talking of a new movement for a home for working boys, which he believes will do much to reduce the number of boys in the state who are growing up to decent manhood on starvation wages of $5 and $6 a week no more than a girl can. And there are many homeless boys in this city and in other cities who are not making any more than that. Boys like girls, get discouraged over the hopeless struggle and enter a life of crime. We've interested several good men in a movement to build a home where working boys on small wages can secure board and lodging at a minimum of $1.75 a week. Our plan is for fifty men to give $100 apiece each year for five years and build the home."

Judge Baggett, who has a reputation of "always starting something" recently refused to send girls for delinquency to the Delaware state school for girls, stating that their chances of reformation is vastly better in some good institutional school.

TODAY ON ALLEGED
POLITICAL GRAFTSpecial Grand Jury Still Investigating
—Shaw Admits Receiving Large Sum of Money.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Jan. 27.—The special grand jury that is investigating alleged political graft resumed its hearings today. James C. Shaw, said to have been a go-between in money transactions, was the principal witness called.

With the aid of other witnesses District Attorney Charles S. Whitman it was said hoped to refresh Shaw's memory on various points, among others the name of the man to whom he acknowledged giving a package containing $41,250 in bills. This money Shaw admitted was given to him by James G. Corcoran, a Pittsburgh contractor.

Mr. Whitman today endeavored again to obtain from Shaw a statement that the $41,250 was given to James E. Gaffney, a political contribution from Patterson and Company successful bidders in 1909 for an $825,000 aqueduct contract awarded by the board of water supply of New York City.

Another witness called was Charles T. Chadwick, commissioner of the board of water supply. Chadwick was a member of the board when the Patterson contract was awarded in 1909.

GOVERNOR REQUESTS
ESSMANN TO RESIGNSuperintendent of Public Property Believed to Be Guilty of Irregularities.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 27.—Following a conference yesterday afternoon with Governor McGovern, William C. Essmann turned in his resignation as superintendent of public property and August W. Meyer of Sheboygan, assistant superintendent, was appointed in his place.

A statement by Executive Clerk Harry C. Wilbur says: "William C. Essmann, superintendent of public property, has tendered his resignation at the request of Governor McGovern. The request was made on information given to the governor of irregularities in Mr. Essmann's department. An incomplete investigation has been made. Mr. Essmann admitted the charge against him. For the time being, August Meyer, assistant, will perform the duties of superintendent."

It is said the trouble arose over transactions relating to the sale of state statutes. The salary paid is $3,000.

Mr. Essmann was appointed when McGovern first became governor. As secretary of the state central committee he held a prominent place in republican party councils, and he managed the governor's campaign for the governorship. He was once an employee of the state insurance department, and later entered business life in Milwaukee.

Mr. Essmann was removed by Gov. McGovern, as superintendent of public property, is paying the price of non-allegiance to the bull moose cause, is the opinion expressed by friends of both parties to the controversy today. From various other sources it is learned that Essmann gave away some of the statutes of 1911 as the volume of 1913 which were already in the press.

It is understood that it has always been customary to give away these books and others of a similar character as soon as the publication has been completed by a new recent volume. It is said that upon this technical violation the resignation was demanded.

YOUTH CONFESSES TO
GROSS OF MYSTERIESAlfred Lehman, Barely Out of Teens,
Reports All Sorts of Crimes.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Jan. 27.—Alfred Lehman, an undersized youth scarcely out of his teens, sat in the witness chair today and confessed to having taken part in sixteen bomb outrages, revealed knowledge of eighty, cleared up the mystery of two murders, and furnished information concerning a number of lesser crimes, including arson and burglary.

Lehman was called as a witness in the trial of Angelo Sylvester, accused of one of the bomb outrages. Lehman told the court of the burning of two Brooklyn houses for the insurance and many other lesser crimes. He said the bomb outrages usually brought the men doing the work fifty dollars. One robbery in which a Chinese was murdered, he said, netted him while the two men were in the act, he said, killed the Chinese, got the same amount. Lehman said he had personally planted sixteen or eighteen bombs causing much damage.

"The gang I worked for," he said, "were black-handers. The boss would write letters to Italians demanding money under threats of death. When they did not 'come across' I was sent with a bomb. They usually paid up after the explosion of the bomb. If they did not we went after 'em again.'"

Handy To Keep Account Of Sales That Are Charged Up.

A credit account cabinet that is useful for the salesman and in saloons and small stores has been designed by a man in the State of Washington. It is made of carrying about, yet provides the user with all the facilities of a pigeonhole desk or filing cabinet. The contrivance consists of a series of leaves hinged together at one end, inside one of the covers is an alphabetically divided state, on which the names of credit customers can be kept and rubbed out when their accounts are settled. The other cover can hold either a pad of billheads, on

TO GIVE DECISION IN TICKNOR TRIAL

Judge Maxfield Considering Motion of Defending Attorney to Dismiss Case.

Decision in the case against Ward Ticknor of Chicago, formerly of Rockford, charged with non-support of his two children, who are being cared for by their grandmother in Janesville, is expected to be given by Municipal Judge Harry Maxfield on Wednesday. At yesterday afternoon's hearing, Attorney H. B. North of Rockford, counsel for the defendant, moved that the case be dismissed, stating that the Janesville court had no jurisdiction over Ticknor, and that the offense, if committed, was under the power of the Rockford courts. Yesterday the court took the testimony of Mrs. Mary Hughes, at whose home the children are being cared for, at her residence on Milton avenue, because of ill health, and later Superintendent of Police Anderson testified that this agreement was not carried out and Ticknor was arrested in Chicago. The defense claimed that the defendant had offered to provide a home for his children both in Chicago and Rockford and had fulfilled his obligation. Anderson testified that North was assisted by F. C. Burpee and District Attorney Dunwiddie was prosecuting the case.

Oscar Callison, who was the second and last witness to be brought before the court following orders by the police commission, came before Judge Maxfield yesterday afternoon, after being paroled for several months and was fined ten dollars and costs. He was left in the custody of Sheriff Whipple and told to appear to the sheriff to make arrangements for the payment of his fine.

BOBBY BURNS DANCE IS WELL ATTENDED

Over A Hundred Couples Attend Annual Anniversary Ball Given At Assembly Hall.

In honor of the 155th anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, Scottish bard, the annual ball of the Rock County Caledonian Society was given last evening at the Assembly hall and was a decided success, over one hundred couples enjoying the celebration.

The hall was nicely decorated with the large hanging bower brilliantly illuminated and winding ribbons extended from all points of the room to the center piece. To the music furnished by Hatch's full orchestra the dancers exhibited a wide variety of the Scotch dances, including the ancient quadrilles, square dances, and Portland waltz, down to the modern refined tango and hesitation. The committee in charge, J. Earle J. Lamb and W. J. Jones, did not fail in their efforts to make the event a success.

OBITUARY

George S. Stuart.

Word has been received of the death of George S. Stuart, in Chicago, this morning. The remains will be brought to Janesville for interment, arriving here Thursday. Education will NOT improve the Race

Editor's Note.—Albert E. Wiggam, the well-known journalist and lecturer, has written a series of articles for this newspaper on the general subject of eugenics. Mr. Wiggam has studied the subject many years and is regarded as an authority. Although many scientists differ with him on important points, because space is given to Mr. Wiggam's views in these columns, it does not necessarily follow that this newspaper indorses all the statements contained in his articles.

(By Albert E. Wiggam.)

The hen does not produce the egg. Oh, yes, the hen does produce the egg, but it is not the egg that is the real egg. It is the little black speck at the end of the yolk. That is the real egg. And while the minute substance in it is enriched by the hen's body, the qualities and characters that will appear in the offspring growing from it were not put there by the hen.

No, the characters in this black speck came from a previous black speck and that from a preceding one, and so on back to the beginning of time and hens and eggs, nobody knows where. And all down through the ages each generation of hens has been merely the carriers, the "trustees" of this precious egg-making substance, this "immortal germ plasma." And the roosters on their side have carried the male eggs in the same manner. The result is a corn stalk, a cabbage or a king! For cabbages and kings are born the same way.

Education Doesn't Help.

Now, if you educate the hen so you educate the egg? Obviously not. Educate the hen for a thousand generations and the chickens at the end will have no better brains. Educating the parent will not educate the future child. You educate the brain cell, the body cell, but never the germ cell. The germ cell is practically a separate organism and the body is the trustee. Professor Weismann of Germany did the first great work to prove that acquired characters are not transmitted to the offspring. The body, Professor Weismann taught, is an "offshoot" from the germ cell. The child inherits nothing from its parents' body or the education and life experiences of that body. The child grows from a germ cell like the one its father grew from. That is the sole reason why a child is like its parents.

Many excellent people have been supposing eugenics means the personal development of the parents so the children will be "well born." This is only a pious superstition. The boy begins not where his father left off, but where his father began. As Mr. Davenport puts it: "The boy is not a chip off the old block. The boy and his father are chips off the same block." I think it was Professor Conklin of Princeton who wisely said, "Wooden legs are not inherited, but wooden heads are." Wooden legs are acquired. Wooden heads are inborn.

So when wooden-headed people marry each other they bring together two lines of germ cells that carry wooden-headedness. Educate block-heads for a thousand years, and as long as they marry each other (as they usually do) blockheadedness is perpetuated as surely as the leopard's spots.

David Starr Jordan says: "If education will improve the race, science knows nothing about it."

Not a Pessimistic Doctrine.

You say this is pessimistic. Oh no. How unfortunate that the scientific experiments on the child in the name of education are not transmitted to future generations.

Did you ever examine the soles of a new-born baby's feet? The skin is no thicker than elsewhere. Yet people have walked for ages on the bottoms of their feet. The same is true of the palms of the hands. A blacksmith's children do not inherit any stronger arms than if their father carried his arm all his life in a sling. The children of German parents do not learn German any more readily than children of English parents learn English. Chinese women have bound their feet for centuries, yet Chinese babies have as big feet as ever. But marry two small-footed people, where small foot was inherited, then you get a small-footed baby.

Education will not and cannot improve the race, but better matings will. There is, and can be no other method of race improvement. A prominent congressman, an avowed eugenicist, is educating his child according to the ideas of eugenics. Eugenics has no concern with education. Its sole aim is to produce, through wisest marriage, better children to educate.

UNIVERSITY MEN TO TEACH IN EDGERTON

Y. M. C. A. Men to Give Edgerton Boys Practical Demonstration of Association Work.

Edgerton, Jan. 27.—The local Y. M. C. A. have been fortunate to secure through the State University Y. M. C. A. a strong team of ten university men who will visit Edgerton from Feb. 6 to Feb. 13. These men will associate with and instruct our boys through games, hikes, entertainments and meetings, giving the boys an opportunity to see what the Y. M. C. A. does in other places and acquainting them with the highest type of university life. A group of men held a meeting to arrange for the coming of the university students. A committee consisting of Andrew McIntosh, L. C. Whittier, C. W. Birkenmeyer, Fred C. Holt and L. A. Anderson was appointed to arrange for place of meeting, entertainment, etc. Preparations for the event are well under way and it is thought that much interest is in store for all.

Arrivals at the Carlton Hotel yesterday were: H. S. Schwartz, L. A. Markham, Janesville; C. E. Booney, W. L. Bredesen, Beloit; J. W. Hall, Whitewater; William Under, Richland Center; O. C. Lee, Stouten; Gilbert Richmond, Lodi; J. S. Rank, Sheboygan; I. E. Kittleson, Madison; H. W. Halsey, R. Haessler, W. W. Wittenwyler, R. E. Helling, Louis Tara, R. F. Kartstein, C. W. Edgerton News Notes.

William Lichtenberger of Minneapolis, Minnesota, joined his wife here over Sunday at the parental home, and left Monday evening for points in the state of Iowa.

Mr. Alex R. Jamieson of Denver, Colorado, arrived last evening and will be the guests of Landford and Mrs. W. P. Guttery of the Carlton Hotel the remainder of the winter.

I. L. Ulms of Milwaukee is here on business. Mr. Ulms is an expert auto repairer and intends to purchase property here and engage in business.

Edgerton, Jan. 27.—Henry Bowen of Fairbanks, Alaska, was a guest at the Frank Kellogg home yesterday.

Mr. Hurd of Stouten, returned home last evening after spending a few days at the home of Mrs. Skinner, who is convalescing from an operation, which she underwent at the Mercy hospital several weeks ago.

Mr. Markham of Janesville spent last evening with the Y. M. C. A. boys.

M. B. Fletcher was a business caller in Janesville yesterday.

Mrs. L. W. Nichols spent yesterday with relatives in Stouten.

Leslie Rood of Sun Prairie, who has been visiting at the home of his mother, returned yesterday.

None Worse.

A Scotch minister has been away on a vacation, says a writer in Punch, and on his return asked the sexton how all had gone in his absence. "Very well, indeed," was the cheering response. "They do say that most ministers leave some one worse than themselves to fill the pulpit when they go away—but you never do that, sir."

WEALTH OF HAIR

Parisian Sage Makes Thin Lifeless Hair Soft and Abundant.

Beautiful hair, fluffy, lustrous, abundant and free from dandruff is one of woman's greatest charms—it's her main delight—yet so many of the fair sex have streaked thin and lifeless hair, and think there is no remedy. Beautiful hair is largely a matter of attention. Parisian Sage frequently applied and well rubbed in to the scalp works wonders. Try it today, and you will be surprised with the result—not only will the hair become abundant, soft, fluffy radiant with life, but really doubly beautiful.

Parisian Sage supplies hair and scalp needs. It surely removes dandruff with one application stops itching head and cleanses the hair of all dirt and excessive oil.

MILTON JUNCTION MAN WEDS. NURSE IN ELK RIVER, IDAHO

Milton Junction, Jan. 27.—Word reached here yesterday of the marriage of Ray McGowan and Miss Josephine Louise McGowan of Elk River, Idaho. Mr. McGowan spent the greater part of his life in this place, as he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. McGowan, who reside here. He graduated from the high school in 1905.

Since his graduation he has completed a course at the University of Wisconsin. About a year ago he was in charge of a drug store. It was here he met Miss Josephine Louise Weisman.

Miss Josephine Louise Weisman's home is at Bay City, Michigan. She is a trained nurse and has been working at Elk River, Idaho. It is expected the young couple will make their home in Washington, as Mr. McGowan has purchased an interest in a drug store at that place.

The best wishes of the entire community go with them.

Local News.

Elbert Marsh received a telegram yesterday from Middleton, Indiana, telling of the death of his father. Mr. Marsh left last night for Middleton.

Miss Josephine Brown is home from Janesville.

Mrs. Alice Holston, who has been visiting here since her return from Washington, left last night for Walworth.

W. H. Gates was a business caller at Walworth yesterday.

Mrs. N. W. Kidder entertained fifteen ladies last Thursday afternoon, Jan. 22, in honor of the birthday of her mother, Mrs. Caroline Cross. Mrs. Cross was eighty-five years old that day. It was the birthday of two others present. All had a fine time and did justice to the six o'clock dinner.

H. I. Coon of Walworth spent yesterday with Miss Nettie Coon.

Robert McCubbin has returned to Madison, where he is taking treatment at the sanitarium.

Sport Snap Shots

Jack Blackburn, the colored pug ex-convict, is going to throw a little action into welterweight circles. At the time of his incarceration some five years ago, Blackburn was going at a wonderful clip and so fast and furious was he that it began to be hard to get anyone to fight him. He carried an awful wallop in his left mitt and had a real kick in his right. He was speedy and clever. He held about the same position in fight affairs at the time of his forced retirement that Mike Gibbons does now. It was in 1908 that he performed the world-beating trick of fighting a heavyweight at 150 pounds and then training down in three weeks and beating a crack lightweight at 133. Now that he is a free man his performances will be well worth watching. Whether or not he will be able to come back is an interesting query and it is said that he appears to be as vigorous as ever. If he does return to his old line of performance he will cause consternation among his adversaries.

Gunboat Smith, prominent bridegroom and heavy champ, declares that in his opinion Willie Ritchie will not be able to make 133 pounds. Gunboat says that Ritchie has grown too much of late to make that figure and that he is no longer a lightweight. There are others who agree with G. B. Then, too, there are those who take Willie's side in the argument and insist that Ritchie will be able to reach the lightweight poundage with ease. Joe Low, manager of Joe Rivers, says that Ritchie will be able to turn the trick all right, but that it will be an awful effort for him. He was down to 133½ when his first surly bout was scheduled, says Levy.

APPLETON QUINTET MAKE BIG SHOWING; MENOMONIE STRONG

Madison Look Like Champs in South-eastern Section—Wausau Are Beaten Saturday.

Several scores from a few of the big games, staged in the Wisconsin high school basketball world, last Friday and Saturday nights, bring about a wonderful change for various critics of the game, in picking the probable contenders for the state title in the spring tournament at Appleton. Some of the scores were not known in the circles last season, are bidding strong, to be given a chance, and are winning constantly from supposedly strong quintets. Many of the scores are very surprising to the fans in Badgerdom, who await anxiously the final elimination struggles for the picking of the flag.

Appleton high, in the northeastern section are strongest from the present looks of things. Their coach, reports a fast bunch of players, all of small stature, but a rough set who can do the business. Beware, northern teams, for Appleton. They may land a place in the tournament yet. Last Friday night they won from Two Rivers 12 to 7. They resorted to guarding qly, and scored barely enough to win.

Menominee, who won third place in the 1913 tourney, are sure to be in the running again this season, from the northern section. Last Wednesday night, they counted a 21-14 victory over the fast Eau Claire five. Many of their valuable men, as V. Sipple, are lost, but they are over-looking that fact, and are playing a fine brand of basketball.

Sparta won last Friday night from Galesville, 31 to 18. Baraboo defeated Hillsboro 23 to 9. Tomah were winners over Portage by a 24 to 12 count. If all sections play off their schedule this fast, there would be easily a month of rest, before the state tournament. All of these six teams just mentioned are in the central section of Wisconsin. The three losers are eliminated so that the winners will battle with any other strong central section fives soon and it will be safe to say that this section will be through playing first.

Pond du Lac highs who lost their first game in the tourney last spring, are going to make a stronger showing this year. They easily trimmed Sheboygan Friday night 23 to 11. The Pondy men are all small, but play a standard game. Monroe highs in the southern section defeated Delavan, 25 to 23, in an overtime game, played at the Monroe. Madison highs are the big team in the southeastern section at present. They gave Beloit a terrible beating Friday night at Beloit, doubling the score, and safely landing the contest early. The final score was 39 to 17. Antigo, in the extreme north, won from Tomahawk, by a 23 to 16 count. Conditions favor Antigo or Ashland for the tournament from the northern section this spring.

Wausau Beaten. Perhaps the most stirring game of last week, took place Saturday night at Marshfield, when Wausau highs took a 25 to 23 defeat at the hands of Marshfield high five. The game was featured by Wausau basket shooting, each member of the team throwing

The report that Eddie Plank was to manage the Lancaster Tri-State team was immediately and indignantly denied by Connie Mack. "Plank is needed a whole lot more at Philadelphia than he is at Lancaster. Eddie isn't ready for the bushes by a long shot yet. He pitched better ball last season than he ever did before. I consider him the marvel of baseball. And I wouldn't be surprised to see him pitching high class ball five years hence."

It would appear that Claude Hendrix, the Pirate pitcher, is anxious to win the rep of being the champion hold-out pitcher of all time. He has been in the big show only three years, but he is already a three-time hold-out. Fred Clarke went after Hendrix's contract not so very long ago, but he was turned down with such avirity he left the matter to be settled by Barney Dreyfuss. Fred said that if Dreyfuss wants the young man he can go after him himself. And not contented with fretting the Pirates with his hold-out tactics, Hendrix is also kidding the life out of the Reds by signing contracts and then showing whims of jumping. Quite a temperamental little person is this young Claude Hendrix.

If old Bob Fitzsimmons is really anxious to fight again, perhaps he had better take up his residence in France. It's a much easier matter to get away with that sort of thing over there than here, according to all reports. Recently Kid McCoy has signed with Carpenter for a bout and it's a pipe that the Kid would have an awful time getting bookings in this country.

Perhaps the Britons would be glad to commission Fitz to enter the ring against Carpenter and avenge their well-known nation against the invading Frenchman. The defeat of Bombardier Wells at the hands of Carpenter has peeved the Britons no little and they are anxious to settle the score. But it must be an Englishman to turn the trick and Fitz was at one time a subject of the king.

Portage played another game Saturday night, after losing to Tomah on Friday. La Crosse this time took them into camp, by running up a total of 62 to a lone 10, which game puts La Crosse as leaders in their section. Weiss, the individual scorer for La Crosse, this time scored eleven field baskets and four free throws. He looks like an all-state center.

Virrona five won from Westby highs 14 to 12, in an exciting conflict Saturday night.

TOURNAMENT TEAM ROLLS HIGH GAME

First Five Rolls Over Twenty-Five Hundred Winning Game by Two Hundred and Ninety Points.

Bowling a 947 game in the second session and 849 in the last attempt, Miller's picked tournament team convinced the Janesville fans and their opponents that they were in prime form to make a showing at the Madison meet. The winning five came from behind a fifty-seven lead and beat out their rivals by two hundred and ninety pins.

The average team score was 172 and two of the five are capable of rolling better games than they put up last night. Merrick tried to bowl with a spick and span new pair of shoes and as a result he was "fussed" during the first two games. He promises that the foot gear will be "hardened to service" by the tournament week and that the score will be busy marking crosses in the sheet. Abraham and Osborn tied for individual honors both rolling 212 in the second round. Their total average was 132. Cook's average was 170. Neighbors' 167 and Merrick, 159.

On Friday night the five will test the Rockford bowlers when they will roll against the Herbert-Lewis outfit at Rockford. On Wednesday night the Parker Pen has decided to chance their team against the star team and they stand an excellent chance of having it badly marred. Tonight the penmakers will meet the white hopes and it is expected that on Friday night against the Beloit five at Janesville. Last night's scores:

FAST BOUT EXPECTED AT SHEBOYGAN WHEN MAHONEY AND PERKINS MIX

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Sheboygan, Wis., Jan. 27.—Young Mahoney of Racine and Billy Perkins of Rhinelander are scheduled to meet here tonight in a ten round go before the Sheboygan A. Both boys are young, aggressive fighters and one of the best bouts of the local season is expected. Odds today were a shade in Mahoney's favor. Perkins is young, strong and has a powerful wallop, but his experience is all on Mahoney's side.

BURIED TREASURE

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Swash."

BURIED treasure is one of the most interesting topics of speculation for men and dogs.

All dogs are interested in buried treasure which is natural because they bury it themselves. The dog is an abstracted and absent-minded creature because he is always trying to figure out the locations of the last eleven bones which he has buried.

Many men are also interested in buried wealth. But they are not the men who buried it as a rule. Men do not bury much treasure nowadays. Wall street society and the automobile make it possible for a man to dispose of his money in a more profitable way. The men who are interested nowadays are the ones who are trying to discover where some other man planted his fortune, and the men who planted said fortunes were mostly pirates who flourished before the seas were as well policed as they are now.

Burying treasure was the one great amusement of the pirate. After he had accumulated a chest full of doubloons or pieces of eight he was not happy until he had lugged the chest ashore and had buried it on some deserted island, nine paces east and fourth south of the point where the line between three tall palms and the volcano peak crosses the shadow of the sun at noon on Candlemas day. After he had planted a few chests he usually got himself "hanged," thus removing the money effectually from circulation and encouraging future generations to mess up vast numbers of desert islands in vain attempts to find it.

The pirates fought very hard for their money and were very foolish to stick it away in the sand at a time when the world was very unhealthily for them anyway, and even with prompt action they could hardly expect to get all of it spent before they died of acute throat trouble. But they were not half as foolish as the man who accumulates about $20 worth of treasure a week and trades it for one good-sized jag on Saturday night. If he were as the dog buries his home and forgets all about the location, he would be better off in the long run.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE APOLLO.

Fred Clinton and the two Norrie Sisters were given a hearty welcome last night at the Apollo Theatre. The two girls are a pair of dainty little dancers as well as singers. Their costumes are pretty and so are their faces. They dance, they sing, and with Clinton give a mighty good entertainment featuring international dances. It is the best act on the bill. Nancy Neville is a sweet little songstress, who with her dog Rover made quite a hit. Her voice is pleasing and her act clever.

Eddie Hill has an act that is interesting. It is an electrical cartoon. He knows how to do it and he does it well enough to receive a good round of applause.

The Streets of New York is a three reel feature that starts today and will be shown again Wednesday. To anyone interested in the metropolis of this country, it will prove educational and instructive. A well formed plot runs through the play and holds the interest of all.

Made Brave Rescue.

Seeing an Italian named Costigliotti about to sink for the third time, in Grimby, England, York's dock, the other day, a trimmer, named Taylor, got two men to lower him by the feet over the dock side. He grabbed the man's coat and held him for several minutes while hoops and ropes were obtained and the rescue completed.

In this vicinity the weather will probably continue unsettled, with light snow. It will be colder but probably not much below freezing. The winds will probably shift to north-west.

HARD TO CONVINCE.

It is going to be pretty hard work to convince the average tax-payer that reform does not spell higher taxes when they come to look at their tax receipts and figure up the difference between this year's and last year's totals. It is all right for the state tax commission to give out yards and yards of figures, talk of this or that, for the state treasurer to assert that the various counties get it all back, but a very small part, but when, as in Rock county, $123,000 goes into the maw of the greedy state treasury and never comes back, the other statements are being doubted. Of course reform costs money. No one denies that. Even the governor, in his speech in Milwaukee, admitted it, but he also said that the people were to blame. Of course they are for having put such men into office. This tax question is going to be a hard nut for the reformers to crack and extract the meat of another election and if the taxpayer sits firmly and keeps up his present determination to oust the gang that has brought this about there is going to be a series of curtain lectures for the men who have brought this to an issue. Then men who framed the income tax were wise enough to leave the farmer out of the accounting. Unfortunately this year the farmer gets hit just as badly as does the manufacturer or the professional man and hence the present trouble.

THE CAMPAIGN ENDS.

The campaign to raise funds for the Palmer Memorial Mercy hospital is over. The sum of $25,000 has been subscribed and Janesville and the surrounding country should feel proud of their efforts. The men and women who devoted their time and energy in aiding this cause have reason for congratulation over the successful issue and in the perpetuating of the hospital have erected a monument to their work. It has been a long, strenuous week and the response of the contributors to the fund in the liberal manner they have betokened the general interest, regardless of religious belief, for a public good. It must be most gratifying to the members of the Sisterhood, who have charge of the institution, this vote of confidence, backed by financial deposits, to aid them in their great unselfish work. The future of the hospital is now assured and it will not be so many years before the remaining indebtedness of a few thousand dollars will have been wiped away, leaving a clean record to its glorious work. This devotion of their time to the care of the sick and poor, and the Sisters of Mercy should receive every encouragement possible to aid them in their labors. The campaign has ended and the result is most satisfactory to all concerned. If it had been possible to raise the entire sum desired, it would have been more desirable, but when it is considered that within a year a similar campaign was taken up and a large sum raised for another public building, the Y. M. C. A., the total of the past six days' work is really remarkable.

THE NEW BRIDGE.

The new Milwaukee street bridge is practically completed. It is a work of art, a monument to the present mayor and commissioners and to the city engineer who designed it. It is a credit to the firm that constructed it, to the men who worked upon it, to the foreman, Mr. Shores, whose handling of the various disturbing situations was even admired by the men who failed to appreciate the magnitude of the labor. The bridge is finished. It again links the two sides of the river together with a permanent structure that will last beyond the memory of present man. Credit should be given Mayor Pathe and his two fellow city commissioners for the work accomplished and it is with pride the citizens can point to the new structure as a valuable asset of the city.

CONFUSION.

Thousands, all over the country, who had never thought that the income tax would trouble them, now find themselves in great perplexity over the law. The public had been led to believe that only those with incomes of over three or four thousand dollars would be troubled and that no one else need be troubled. When it was discovered that every holder of a corporation bond, no matter how small, would have to explain why he should not be taxed, a loud outcry against the income tax was heard on every side. The framers of the provision sought to prevent its evasion by requiring the payment of the tax by the corporations which issue bonds, so that every bondholder, however small, would be required to prove that he was entitled to exemption before he could have it. The tax is collected "at the source," that is, from the corporation issuing the bonds.

Has the public understood the drastic feature of this provision, it would have been generally opposed, but the majority of the people believed that four or five hundred thousand rich men and women would have to pay all the income tax and the crowd was perfectly satisfied to let it go at that. There is an old saying that we are all in favor of any tax that the other man has to pay.

The income tax is a fair example of the slovenly sort of legislation that we are having under democratic pressure, not only at state capitals, but at Washington. No sooner had the tariff bill been passed than it was found that the special five per cent exemption granted to goods shipped on foreign vessels was of doubtful propriety as it conflicted with our foreign treaties. This decision of the attorney general affects ten million dollars of revenue and upsets all the calculations of the framers of the law. Is it surprising that the bankers and business men of the country are earnestly protesting against the enactment of a banking law without a thorough knowledge of its full intent?

The Hon. A. Barton Hepburn, in commenting on the Glass-Steagall bill, said that the administration was honestly engaged in an effort to pass a good bill, but that half the legislators did not understand the situation or comprehend the question. Nearly every leading banker has made a similar observation. The banking bill as it was originally introduced is now conceded to have been so defective that it would have been productive of harm yet the bankers who protested against it at the outset were denounced as lobbyists and friends of that bugaboo, the "money trust."

It is unfortunate that legislation vitally affecting the welfare of all the people, is too often framed by those who with best intentions disregard the protests of experts speaking in the light of practical experience. The country has to pay the cost of bad legislation. It is sometimes a very heavy bill. We need only recall the days when greenbackism, fiat money and free silver were urged upon us by honest-minded but shallow leaders as the basis of a sound and permanent currency system. What do we think of these fads now? What ruin would they have wrought if we had tolerated them for a single moment. And it was the country that saved us from them even as the seek to save the country now from the infection of an ill-considered and ill-balanced banking reform bill.

General Felix Diaz no doubt feels grateful for the generosity of the Havana authorities who acquitted him of the crime of refusing to let several gentlemen assassinate him.

This is about the time of year when a good many people arrive at the conclusion that those resolutions were not good ones anyhow, and ought to be changed.

President Wilson is not to be blamed if he prefers to have Mrs. Wilson's land title case decided by men who obtained rather than lost their jobs through him.

"The children of New York are more precious than his motor cars." Yes, and the show girls are, too, if the item of expense is taken into account.

If Ty Cobb should finally decide to jump to the Federals he need not expect the American league pitchers to put on mourning for him.

According to the London Times, Huerta is "a pronounced tyrant." Very much so; he is pronounced in this country in all sorts of ways.

There is good reason to suspect that the Mexicans are more interested in the fords in the Rio Grande than the one in Detroit.

The one thing lacking in that conference between President Wilson and Envoy Lind was the presence of a moving picture outfit.

The administration may have reason to believe the Mexican refugees would rather be vaccinated than bathed.

It appears that the lockstep is to be abolished from the financial institutions as well as the penitentiaries.

AMONG WISCONSIN NEWSPAPERS

Why Some Cities Are Inert.

A great meeting is to be held in Madison next month at which will be considered the improvement of country life. An incidental feature of interest on the social side is a noonday dinner to be held at the hotel. To this function have been invited the mayors of some fifty cities in the region not far from this capital. Strange thing! Of all the officials thus invited few have responded; mostly the invitations have been overlooked entirely, attention being paid to them neither affirmatively nor negatively—a pleasant civility blissfully ignored! Yet the very theme to be considered at this lunch, as well as the conference, has to do with the particular problem which today most deeply interests perhaps every city roundabout—Madison Democracy.

The New Politics.

All about us we see signs that parties have gone to pieces. A new politics has grown up. It is founded partly on personalities and partly on principles. The party name has lost its fascinations and its terrors. The machinery of the party has rusted as clever men have learned that the operation of it is to mean little to them in personal advantage. What has happened in La Crosse is but an illustration of what is going on everywhere in the country.—La Crosse Leader Press.

Beyond Hope.

It isn't worth while to waste time with the man who declares that only seventeen cents out of each hundred dollars of tax collected by the state goes to pay for commissions. He really believes it, he is a subject for medical treatment; if he doesn't believe it, he either has, or expects to get, a state appointment. In either case he is hopeless.—Wausau Record-Herald.

Campaign Documents.

The McGovern speech "explaining" the excessive state tax is to be circulated as campaign documents, we are told, but there is a better campaign document in the home of every taxpayer in Wisconsin, and they are the tax bills rolled up by a reckless, extravagant, experimenting Republican state administration.—Port Washington Star.

Usually on the Off Side.

The President's message appears to have pleased all the newspapers of the state except the Socialist Milwaukee Leader.

Tragic Dream Came True.

To dream of being mangled by a locomotive and to have that dream come true shortly after he had related it to his companions was the experience of Wilmer Johnson, of Phoenixville, Pa. While off his engine it began to move, and the enactment of the dream came true, as he jumped for the running board, but missed it and fell under the wheels.

OREGON BLUE SKY LAW IS EXPLAINED

Rigid Enforcement of Legislation Against "Wild Cat" Investment Is Successful in Oregon.

[Salem, Oregon, Jan. 27.—] Declaring that Oregon is today practically free from "wild cat" and unprincipled promoters, dishonest brokers, and fakirs, Ralph A. Watson, state commissioner of corporations, explained how this condition has been brought about through his rigid enforcement of Oregon's famous Blue Sky law. (Commonwealth of Oregon's explanation of the workings of this piece of legislation should hold deep interest for every man who has funds, large or small, to invest. The article follows:)

The Blue Sky law is an instrument of protection to the investors of the state. It is a barrier placed across the path of fraud and deceit. It is a token of honest dealing between man and man; a promise of fair play, an exponent of the square deal, and a deal, it is because of the unprincipled greed of man, careless of the misfortune of others in his mindfulness of his own content; it is because of dishonesty and misrepresentation and untruth; it is because too many men, trusting with the money and the hopes of others, have proven untrue to their trust because the voice of self profit has been louder than the voice of conscience, that the law is necessary. The result of the Blue Sky law will be that the unprincipled promoter, the dishonest broker, the fakir, the fraud and curbsome dealer in wildcat securities will find Oregon less of a vale of hope fulfilled and more of a garden of Gethseman.

It is a law which the legislature born of its statutes and obedient to them. It has no power that the statutes do not grant. The corporation is simply the creature of the law, by and through which many men can act as a body in a corporate state, to produce something of value to the stockholders and to the advantage of the public generally. The Blue Sky law reaches behind the company to the promoter, and beyond the promoter to the stock salesman and the stock broker, demanding of them honesty of intention and integrity of action. It is not the purpose, and it will not be the effect, of this law to hamper, circumscribe or retard the progress or development of legitimate and honest business, but to demand that the law is the friend of the square corporation. Oregon wants and needs, the producing corporation to come in, to develop her resources, to market her products, to open her mines, to improve her workshops, her mills and factories.

Suppose John Doe wants to buy a farm and has no money. He knows where there are 100 acres of good land, worth $100 an acre. He wants to get it into a corporate state, and until its produce will begin to pay him back for his work and worry. The land will cost him $10,000, the improvements and working capital $10,000 more. John Doe is entitled to borrow $20,000, and he borrows it. He would not be justified in borrowing $30,000 or $50,000 or $100,000 on the deal. No one would be so optimistic as to hope to find any man, or set of men, who would loan $30,000 on a $20,000 proposition, certainly not $100,000. I fail to see then, that if John Doe can not expect to borrow $100,000 on a $20,000 gamble, why the promoter of a corporation expects to borrow of a band of stockholders two or three times the value of the stock proposition he has to offer those who invest in his securities. No corporation has the right to drown its stockholders with a saturated solution of stock certificates.

But, what about the speculative investment in the development of the patented article, of problematical value, the opening of the mine of unknown worth. All patents have to be promoted, all mines have to be developed. I do not believe the legislature has any right to stand in the way of honest and legitimate speculation. It is the God-given right of man to take a chance.

The mining game is a gambling game, with luck for the dealer and chance for the investor. The mining game if it is square, and a bad one if it is crooked. Any man has a right to play it, but he has a right to know when he sits in a game that the deal is honest, the cards not marked, and that he has a chance to win back the money he put in.

When the normal stockholder invests in mining stock he has the right to expect that his money will be used to develop the mine and not the mine to develop the stock. The promoter of a corporation has the right to know where his money is going, what it is being spent for. He has the right to insist, when he buys stock under representation that the money is going to be used to develop the prospect shaft, that the shaft is sunk.

That is what the Blue Sky law is for. Its purpose is to see that the investor gets his money's worth. It means that the corporation must be formed in the future unless it has more assets than a stock book and a fountain pen. The Blue Sky law does not mean that the State of Oregon has undertaken to become the grantor of every security that passes the test of the corporation department. The law does not attempt to eliminate all business risk, and make every stock certificate as safe and staple as a treasury note. It provides that every corporation, partnership, company, association or person who shall issue or negotiate securities, must show his proposition to be safe, sane and equitable, and to hold out promise of success with proper, honest and efficient management. It means that the people of Oregon will no longer be deceived by millions of dollars by the dishonest promoter, and the misrepresentation of the stockholder and the wild catter whose manipulations have done more to stagnate legitimate development than any other thing.

Lyric and Majestic Theaters

John Bunny appears tomorrow in the Vitaphone comedy "Bunny's Mistake," and Thursday in "The Misadventures of a Night on a Roaring Road." If you like Bunny, as almost everybody does, you should see both of these.

It is proposed to give a performance at 10:30 P. M. of the next installment of "Kathlyn," especially for those who work on Saturday evening. Shall we do it?

Tonight's program is of average quality, including a two-reel comedy, a Ruth Roland Kalem comedy, a good Lubin, an Essanay Western, and a film showing how cut glass is made.

Extensive Plans For Early Opening

Spring Season to Herald Unusually Beautifully Hand Tailored Garments For Women

Looking forward to the most successful season of their career in making man-tailored garments for women, Messrs. Lewis & Strasberg are making wonderful preparations for an early opening for the coming season.

MR. LEWIS HAS JUST RETURNED FROM A BUYING TRIP and Mr. Strasberg is now in the east, buying and planning the newest novelties in imported materials and the latest designs and styles.

THE FIRM HAS CONTRACTED WITH THE BRUNER WOOLEN COMPANY of New York, London and Paris for their stock of fine imported pure wools. This importing company is the largest in the world and their stock includes nothing but the best importations.

ALL OF THE LEWIS AND STRASBERG GARMENTS ARE MADE IN THEIR OWN SHOP by a corps of the highest class of men tailors that money can procure. Four have already been secured and they will work under the personal supervision of Mr. Strasberg, who is himself an expert designer and cutter, in fact he has but one equal in Chicago.

MANY OF THE MOST PROMINENT AND EXACTING LADIES OF THE CITY AND COUNTY are patrons of this progressive firm and they are fluent in their praises of the beautiful workmanship and fit they have received.

MR. LEWIS HAS BEEN IN BUSINESS IN JANESVILLE FOR FOUR YEARS. His family is here and he has made this his permanent home. The ladies of Janesville are very fortunate in having a local tailoring concern that can do high class work equal to any other shop in the country and at prices no higher than is asked for many ready made garments. An absolute guarantee of perfect satisfaction is assured all.

eruption on ankle
GREAT SUFFERING

Many Nights Did Not Sleep. Burned All the Time. Wore Bandage Night and Day. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Now Well.

Kingsville, Mo.—"My trouble began eleven years ago. Nearly half of the time there were running sores around my ankle; sometimes it would be two years at a time before they were healed. There were many nights I did not sleep because of the great suffering. The sores were deep running ones and so sore that I could not bear anything to touch them. They would burn all the time and sting like a lot of bees were confined around my ankle. I could not bear to scratch it. I could not let my clothes touch it. The skin was very red. I made what I called a cap out of white felt, blotting paper and soft white cloth to hold it in shape. This I wore night and day.

"I tried many remedies for most of the eighteen years with no effect. Last summer when my ankle had been so sore for over a year and much worse than ever before I sent for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment I gained relief; they relieved the pain right then. It was three months from the time I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment until the sores were entirely healed. I have not been troubled since." (Signed) Mrs. Charles E. Brooke, Oct. 22, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free with 32-p. Skin Book. Address: "Cuticura," Dept. T, Boston.

ONE DOSE RELIEVES
A COLD—NO QUININE

"Pape's Cold Compound" makes you feel fine at once—Don't stay stuffed-up! Take it now.

Relief comes instantly. A dose taken every two hours until three doses are taken will end gripe misery and break up a severe cold either in the head, chest, body or limbs. It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing! Ease your throbbing head! Nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine.

CAINVILLE CENTER

Cainville Center, Jan. 26.—G. H. Howard received two carloads of ear corn from Janesville last week. Lizzie Rowland is spending a few days at home with her mother. She expects to go to Madison, February 1st, where she has a position in a milk depot. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Andrew and children are visiting at the home of the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clark. W. B. Andrew went to Albany, Sunday, to see his cousin, Francis Howard, who is sick at his home there. Two carloads of feed were received at this station last week. Robert Acheson received one and William Drafahl the other. The weekly prayer meeting will be held Wednesday evening with Mrs. Warren Andrew.

Mrs. William Klusmeyer will entertain the "Helpful Union" Thursday the 29th. Dinner will be served and a cordial invitation is extended to all. Frank Drafahl and Ben Sarrow were business visitors on the street Monday morning.

Miss Florence Poynter is sewing for Miss Lizzie Rowland this week. Mrs. Glenn Clark has been the record. She has a brood of young chicks hatched in January.

Mrs. Mary Lowry of Fargo, North Dakota, is visiting this week at the home of George Townsend.

Mrs. Dave Andrew and daughter, Harriet; Eva and Ella Townsend, Mrs. Frank Chase and Nellie Gardner were passengers to Evansville, Saturday.

Mrs. Carrie McCoy and daughter, Ada, attended church services here Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Townsend and Mrs. George Townsend attended O. E. S. meeting at Footville, Thursday evening.

E. G. Townsend of Janesville spent a short time Sunday at the parental home. George Brigham is receiving stock at the station today.

This vicinity was visited by a nice snow storm Sunday afternoon. Some sleighs are running but wheeling is best yet.

A. F. Townsend's old family horse "Billy," died Sunday morning.

Frank Bennett and wife and the Misses Lizzie Rind and Florence Poynter were Evansville shoppers Saturday evening.

"CASCARETS" IF CONSTIPATED, HEADACHY, STOMACH SOUR OR BILIOUS—DIME A BOX

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, constipation, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight with Cascarets.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets sweeten and regulate your stomach; remove the sour, constipated and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry off the decomposed waste from the bowels. Then you feel great.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and make you feel bubbly and cheerful for months. Don't forget the children.

FIND BLOODHOUNDS
ANXIOUS TO LEARN

First Lessons Show Police Dogs to Be Apt Pupils—Kindergarten Work Soon Mastered.

The bloodhound pups, which the Janesville police force purchased several weeks ago are enjoying their first lessons in man trailing and have exhibited great instinct for the work. As yet they are unnamed, as the petition to the American Kennel Club for registry instructions brought the reply that three names would have to be chosen and if the first choice had already been taken by other owners, the second and third names would be given consideration.

Progress in Training. The work of training the pups has been placed in the hands of Patrolman Sam Brown, and excellent results are already showing from his first lessons start with teaching the pups to find an article such as an old shoe that has been dragged a short distance and hid. The dogs are allowed to smell the article and then the pups are taken to an open place where a runner, who is known to the dogs, has tramped around. The trainer takes the hound to the starting place and says to them, "Find the shoe." The pups are then released and they will trace the track. To make the dogs bay at their trainer comes to their assistance, the make-believe fugitive fights the dogs with a hat or coat.

After the dogs have traced the trail increased in length. Various methods are used to teach the four-footed detectives to trace a man on horse back, to train them to take a scent from loose articles such as a garment, a hat, a stick, a tin can, and to have them follow a trail through houses. These lessons will be repeated daily, but at present the hounds are only in the kindergarten class although they will graduate into the more complex trials within a few weeks.

Kneute Shows Jealousy. Persons who expected to find a savage "man-eater" were holding a wrong impression. Instead of baring teeth and snarls the pups were over-anxious to make friends. Kneute, the spaniel who makes his home at the police station, is thoroughly disgusted with the action of the bloodhounds and let loose in the corridor. Kneute makes a dash for the door and sits waiting to be let out. The fact that the hounds receive most of the attention and that they are every time the pups try to make friends, a threatening growl warns them that distance means safety.

TOWN LINE

Town Line, Jan. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Almahar Harstad returned Thursday evening from their wedding trip to Madison. A few forty-five and the neighbors and friends of the newly married couple assembled at their home upon the evening of their arrival and gave them a most pleasant surprise. Music and games helped to pass the evening away. Refreshments were served.

Stuart Thorne was the guest of Leslie Knoles for a couple of days the last of the week.

Mrs. Anna Knoles entertained thirteen of her young friends Sunday afternoon in honor of her thirteenth birthday. All had a most pleasant time. A delicious supper was served.

Charles Schmidt and daughters, Melinda and Bert Gibbons, all of Milwaukee, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Larrabee for the week end.

Mrs. Catherine Steinkamp visited recently at the home of Bert Atkinson and Jefferson last week.

Miss Mae Steinkamp spent a few days recently at Milwaukee.

Wood sawing and the delivering of L. C. McIntosh to Janesville, the work of the farmers just at present.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, Jan. 27.—F. P. Smiley drove out from Janesville on Saturday evening and spent Sunday at the home of his sister, Mrs. John Beck.

Miss Gene Stuvengen left on Monday morning for a visit with her sister, Mrs. John Beck, at Elroy, Wisconsin. She expects to be gone about a week or ten days.

Ernest Klein, who is attending school at Madison was an over Sunday visitor in the village.

Mrs. H. K. Hendrickson, who is at St. Augustine hospital, Chicago, is not improving as rapidly as her friends would wish. Much anxiety is felt regarding her condition.

L. C. McIntosh of Janesville was in town on Monday in the interests of a vacuum cleaner, for which he is agent.

The town treasurer of the town of Newark at also the one from the town of Spring Valley were at the local bank on Monday receiving taxes for their respective towns.

A number of Ceila Jacobson's young friends surprised her on Saturday evening coming for a party at her home and notifying her that they had come to spend the evening and that the gathering was a "party on her." They had a jolly good time.

H. C. Staven received two cars of tobacco on Monday on Monday and another firm one. Mr. Staven's cars were consigned to Madison and the third one to Janesville.

The handling of six cars of farm produce on Monday made Orfordville look as though it were indeed quite a business center. B. J. Taylor loaded and shipped three cars of live stock and tobacco firms loaded a like number of cars of "the weed." The local bank was kept busy in consequence.

Heart to Heart
Talks
By CHARLES N. LURIE

THE ANCHOR. Of the various sorts of anchor which hold men to life and work, love of land is one of the strongest. Only the love of family, in all likelihood, surpasses it in general diffusion among mankind.

Very often the two are combined, for the man who truly loves his family will seek to root it in a home of its own.

Family love in a rented home is a beautiful thing. It cannot lose its divine light under any circumstances of poverty or distress. But in a home of its own it shines with a steady, brilliant glow.

Next higher in the scale of human habitation to a home of one's own without a garden is a home with a garden. The sentinels of the flowers stand around the home to adorn it with their own gracious beauty. In their look are healing of the spirit and balm to the heart. They are the stars of the earth.

More and more managers of large industrial works, in America and abroad, are recognizing the fact that the best workman is the one who is bound to the soil, who has a "stake in the country," as the saying goes. He is a better man and a better employee in proportion to his love of his home. So the heads of the works are aiding their men to acquire homes in cheerful, sanitary surroundings near the scenes of their employment.

It is a wise course. It makes men of "hands."

Take for example the men who work for a certain coal and coke company in West Virginia. Many coal miners are of roving disposition, digging up stakes and moving to and fro as their whim takes them. The tendency is detrimental to stability of conditions at the mines.

At the mine in West Virginia the managers decided several years ago to encourage their men to plant gardens at their homes. At first it was uphill work, for the miners could not be brought to see the advantages of the plan. But the employers persevered and offered prizes for the best specimens of fruits and vegetables and flowers grown by their men.

The scheme worked. The men became interested. Now that mining town is almost a model industrial community. The houses are well kept, the grounds are beautiful, and the general condition of the workers has been raised. When causes of difference between the company and its men arise there is more of the "get together" spirit that is so helpful.

All because of love of home and gardens. Worth while, is it not?

NEWVILLE

Newville, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Cooper entertained the L. A. S. at her home on Thursday. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Cooper; Secretary, Mrs. L. K. Peck; Treasurer, Mrs. Kreuger.

Leora Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. George Kohlman, George Huseen and Lee Alder attended a party at the Bates home in Porter on Friday evening.

Mrs. Pierce is still under the care of Dr. Crosby.

Mr. Aubrey delivered his tobacco at Edgerton on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Damuth visited relatives here yesterday.

Phyllis and Dorothy Merrifield visited Mrs. Whitney on Sunday.

What So Precious
As a Healthy Baby?

Every Youngster Can Have Fine Digestion if Given A Good Baby Laxative.

HOWARD ROUSE.

In spite of the greatest personal care and the most intelligent attention to diet, babies and children will become constipated, and it is a fact that constipation and indigestion have wrecked many a young life. To start with a good digestive apparatus is to start life without handicap.

But, as we cannot all have perfect working bowels, we must do the next best thing and acquire them, or train them to become healthy. This can be done by the use of a laxative-remedy very highly recommended by a great many mothers. The remedy is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and has been on the market for two generations. It can be bought conveniently at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, and those who are already convinced of its merits buy the dollar size.

Its mildness makes it the ideal medicine for children, and it is also very pleasant to the taste. It is sure in its effect, and is gently harmless. Very little of it is required and its frequent use does not cause it to lose its effect, as is the case with so many other remedies.

Thousands can testify to its merits in constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache, etc., among them reliable people like Mrs. James R. Rouse, of Marinette, Wis. Her little son Howard was fifteen months old last April, but he was sick with bowels and trouble from birth and suffered intensely. Since Mrs. Rouse has been giving him Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin all trouble has disappeared and the boy is becoming robust.

Thousands keep Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, for every member of the family can use it from infancy to old age. The users of Syrup Pepsin have learned to avoid cathartics, salts, mineral waters, pills and other harsh remedies for they do but temporary good and are a shock to any delicate system.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

TWO WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Chicago, Ill.—"I must thank you with all my heart for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I used to go to my doctor for pills and remedies and they did not help me. I had headaches and could not eat, and the doctor claimed I had female trouble and must have an operation. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and she did and feels fine now."—Mrs. M. E. KARSCHNICK, 1438 N. Paulina Street, Chicago, Illinois.

The Other Case.
Dayton, Ohio.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of pains in my side that I had for years and which doctors' medicines failed to relieve. It has certainly saved me from an operation. I will be glad to assist you by a personal letter to any woman in the same condition."—Mrs. J. W. SHERER, 126 Cass St., Dayton, Ohio.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

May Help You if Lungs are Affected

Proper diet, fresh air and temperate habits are beneficial to persons suffering from Lung Trouble; but in a great many instances reports show that the addition of a medicine for this affection has materially helped in bringing about recovery. I kept on taking the medicine and improved fast. In March, 1910, I was a good appetite and sleep well. When I left Denver my weight was 130 pounds. I now weigh 165, my normal weight. Thank God and your Alternative for my health.

Broadway Jones

From the Play of
George M. Cohan

By HOWARD MARSHALL

With Photographs from Scenes in the Play

"It must have been very late, for it was almost eleven when they left your house, wasn't it?"

"Oh, those New York people—they don't think a thing of sitting up till all hours—midnight, sometimes later!"

The judge preened himself a little after this sensational statement, and Josie, though she had heard such wild tales in the past, was much impressed by this one. It seemed so much more possible, more real, now that she had seen Broadway in his maturity. How exciting it must be to stay up, right along, till midnight! But it must strain one's health. She hoped he would not do it often in the future!

She was beginning to feel a definite personal interest in the youth's health. Such a nice young man! For him to dissipate his life away by staying up at night, that way—

"He promised to be here at ten-fifteen," she ventured.

"Yes, that's what brought me over. He asked me to tell you that he'd be a little late. I guess he didn't sleep very well. He says he had a lot of horrible dreams. What sort of a talk did you have with him last night, anyhow?"

"No, he left the house soon after you did. You must have said something that upset him. He acted dreadfully worried."

Josie bent above her work. She could not tell even the judge of the intensity of feeling which she had put into that long conversation with Broadway.

She had not slept so very well herself. She had wondered if he thought her bold, officious, to have given him advice so freely, to have told him what she had about what she believed to be his duty. She knew that, now and then, she had been almost impassioned in her plea for Jonesville and its people. She wondered if he thought her silly, over-earnest. But she told the judge none of these things. They were hidden in her heart. That heart had known a lot of turmoil since Broadway had come back.

"I simply told him the true state of affairs and explained to him what the plant meant to the town," she said and bent above her papers on the desk.

"What did he say?" asked the persistent judge.

Much as she loved the judge, she wished that he would go away and question her no further. There was a little feeling in her heart that she must file that talk with Broadway among the things which she held sacred. All women have a secret file of memories of that sort. She could not talk about it.

"He said nothing very much."

Then a detail of his talk which had intensely puzzled her came back to her, and she decided to discuss it with the judge.

"He kept inquiring how much cash we had." She smiled, not critically. "He doesn't seem to be much of a business man."

"He struck me that way, too," the judge said gravely. "Did he say the trust made him an offer?"

She sighed. "Yes." Ah, if she had failed to move him! He might already have accepted it, and then what would be the fate of Jonesville! This thought made her very nervous.

The judge nodded wisely. "That's what I thought."

She sighed again. There was a long silence, full of troubled thoughts.

"Did he talk as if he intended to sell?" the judge asked finally.

She worked at her papers nervously a moment before she framed the words of her reply. "I'm afraid that's what he's thinking of, judge." After a silent moment she straightened out more papers, and then looked up again. "We must do all we can to influence him against it."

The judge nodded, then rose, and after a worried turn about the great bare room, approached her and stood facing her with eyes intently on her face.

"You have influence with him, Josie."

She could not meet his eyes, yet was not certain why. She hoped that what he said was true, yet scarcely dared to think it. "Do you think so?" she asked somewhat weakly.

The judge answered in a hearty voice, full of real confidence. "I know it. You made a great impression on him. He likes you, Josie."

This was entirely unexpected. It confused her, even in the office where she had no trained herself to business that nothing ordinarily could affect her. She felt that she could rightly show rejoicing at the news, for at the same time, she was inwardly aware that it was not because it boded well for Jonesville that she really was pleased by it.

"Oh, nonsense, judge!"

But he was very much in earnest. It was plain enough that he attached no significance other than commercial to this liking of which he spoke. It was a fortunate fact, and that was all.

"He thinks you know your business," he declared.

Somewhat she was intensely disappointed. For this she criticized herself. What could be better than to have the owner of the enterprise of which she virtually was manager think she knew her business? This was certainly good reason for congratulation. She must not be silly. Confidence in her ability at business might even help to influence him toward refusing to sell out. If she could but impress him with the fact that she was able, might it not be possible that his confidence in large future profits would weigh powerfully?

To her surprise she heard a chuckle from the judge and when she looked at him discovered definite amusement on his face.

"And after you had gone last night, he just raved about your eyes!" the old man happily informed her.

"My eyes!" She felt the blood mounting to her cheeks and tried to hide them with an industry which kept her bent above her papers. If he had raved about her eyes then the impression she had made on him was not entirely commercial!

"That's what he did! He said you had the bluest eyes he'd ever seen!" Now the judge laughed heartily.

She flushed with sudden wrath. "Why, judge, my eyes are gray!"

The judge himself was now surprised. He had believed them brown. "Are they?" He arose, went to her, and through his thick-lensed spectacles, peered at her face. "Why, so they are!" He walked away, nonplussed. "Well, what do you think of that?"

"I think—"

"Perhaps he's color blind," the judge said hopefully. "I guess I have been."

"Maybe that is it."

They were interrupted by Sam Higgins. The foreman, it appeared, wished to talk to Josie. Sam had a way of almost shutting both his eyes and throwing back his head when he announced things of this kind.

"Yes," said Josie, with the indifference of the business woman who has long been of authority, "I'll see him in just a few minutes."

Sam whirled slowly, went to the door and loudly delivered her message, as if his voice must reach to the factory's farthest end.

This focused the judge's attention upon something he had been considering. He leaned above the desk and spoke to Josie confidentially. "I thought of something on the way over, Josie. Nobody but us knows that the young fellow is in town. He registered at the Grand, you know, under the name of Jackson. Maybe the people in the plant are getting nervous."

"Yes, they are," she granted. "There have been so many rumors of the sale, I'm worried."

"Well, then, don't you think it might be a good thing to spread the news around among the men a little?"

She evidently agreed, for she vigorously nodded and tapped a bell. "Perhaps it would be a good idea."

Noting that she had rung the bell, the judge held up a warning hand. "Don't do it that way. You leave it to me. I won't have to tell more than one or two of them." He chuckled. "I'll step in on my way out and tell you what effect it has."

"Yes, do, judge."

"Are you ready for Higgins?"

"Yes; tell him to come in."

Going to the door, the judge beckoned to the man, who was waiting in the shop beyond, and the gangling, plainly heavy-minded and exceedingly intense foreman entered.

"How do you feel today, Joe?" the judge asked kindly.

"I don't feel very well," Higgins answered gloomily and frowning.

The judge looked at him, smiling, not entirely with approval. "You never do, do you, Joe?" Higgins made no answer; the judge laughed and disappeared.

"Well, what is it, Higgins?" Josie inquired without delay, looking up at the unpleasantly faced creature as if she had no time to waste.

He came forward lurchingly, nervously twisting his cap in powerful hands; but there was nothing of the suppliant about him; rather he seemed almost to be inclined to threaten. "I want to ask you a question, Miss Richards."

"Go right ahead."

"I'll expect you to tell me the truth now!"

She flashed an angry look at him. "I'm not in the habit of lying."

He gazed at her with lowered head and frowning face. His words came slowly, as if he found it difficult to find them; but he did not speak with hesitation; indeed, there was that about him which hinted at the labor union orator.

"I'm talking for every man in the plant," he began, with rising voice, endeavoring to be impressive. "We had a meeting this morning, and we want to know whether this concern is going into the trust or not! We decided that we're entitled to some information, and that's what I'm here for; to find out what you know about it."

This naturally angered her. She was not one to be browbeaten, and he was plainly trying to browbeat her. She flushed vividly. "I don't know anything about it!"

His voice reached a tone higher in its pitch. "Well, if you don't, who does?"

"I'm sure I don't know."

Now, he was definitely bullying. "Well, we must have an answer, one way or the other. It's our work and our living, and we've got to know where we are at."

She paid no attention to his definitely offensive manner now. "You'll have to get your information from the man who owns the plant."

"Well, where's he?"

"Right here in town."

He was amazed. He had not dreamed of this. "Young Jones here in town?"

"Yes; he's stopping at the Grand hotel."

"When did he get here?"

"Last evening."

"Have you seen him?"

"Yes."

It was plain enough that Higgins' most vivid suspicions were aroused. He looked at her accusingly. His voice was even louder than it had been. "He got here last evening, eh? Then that settles it!" He went to her desk and reared across it as if indicating "no." He came here with that trust fellow, didn't he?"

Now she, in turn, was really surprised. "What trust fellow?"

"Pembroke, one of the head men of the Consolidated."

None but a fool could have doubted her amazement and her worry as she rose and walked closer to him. "Is Pembroke here in town?"

"Oh," he sneered. "You didn't know that, eh?"

"I certainly did not."

He did not quite believe her, yet took a certain pleasure in imparting

"The Business Will Need Your Attention."

the distressing news to her, on the chance that she was truthful and had not before heard it. "Well, he's here. Several of the men saw him and recognized him. I suppose he's here with Jones to close us out. Is that it?"

"I don't know any more about it than you do, Higgins."

"If you marry him," said her papa, who was exhibiting symptoms of violent displeasure, "I will not only have to support, but I will have to pay his debts, too."

But the pretty girl and petulant young thing who was hanging to his coat lapels was not moved by the argument. "No, papa," she said, "you know well enough that Fred has to live; just the same as other men and as to his debts I've heard you say hundreds of times that a man's debts ought to be paid."

While traveling on a steamboat a notorious card-sharp, who wished to get into the good graces of a clergyman who was on board, said to the reverend gentleman:

"I should very much like to hear one of your sermons, sir."

"Well," replied the clergyman, "you could have heard me last Sunday if you had been where you should have been."

"Where was that, then?"

"In the county jail," was the answer.

"Captain," said a wealthy passenger who was about to take his first trip across the ocean, "I understand this ship has got several watertight compartments."

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Captain," the passenger went on, decidedly, "I want one of those compartments—I don't care what it costs."
